Interview Summary
Licensing Coordinators spoke with Executive Director, Cassie Trahan. Cassie shared that the agency currently has five youth residing in the program. Cassie also shared that more insulation was installed in the house and new flooring. New dishwasher and washer/dryer are commercial grade. Cassie stated that she hopes for the construction of a new residential home adjacent to the existing facility will be completed soon, and she is hoping for a June 2024 opening. Youth interviews x2: • When asked what they appreciated most about living in the programs, one youth stated: “New experiences”, therapy is helping one youth grow as a person. The second youth stated that it helped her with her trauma. One youth talked about the different groups she attends such as nutrition group, and creativity group, which is her favorite since she loves to paint. • Fun activities and recreation reported by the youth: Water slides, hikes swimming, “fun places”, pumpkin patches, going to the park, spending time at the gym, riding horses, and being outdoors in general. • All youth mentioned that they receive three meals a day, with multiple snacks. The youth reported fresh fruit are always available. One youth reported that they wished they could have bigger portions of food. This youth did say that plenty of snacks in between meals are offered. • Both youths reported the program provides hygiene products, which includes, soap, shampoo, feminine products, and toothpaste. • Both youths reported that they could talk to staff if they had a concern or need. • Both youths stated there are privacy restrictions in contacting their approved contacts. They stated they could have daily phone calls and staff are present in the room during phone calls. One youth described this as a safety and security thing. She said the reason the program does this is so youth are not calling people that are not on their approved contact list. CCLP is working with the program to ensure youth are able to have private calls with approved individuals using a communication device that prevents the user from dialing other numbers and potentially communicating with unapproved persons. When asked if the youth feel safe in the program, one youth stated she felt safe because she believes staff know what they are doing, and they keep the youth safe. The other youth interviewed felt safe most of the time, except for when her peers are in crisis. This youth shared that they had told a staff member that she didn’t feel safe during a crisis involving another youth. This youth explained that when they told a staff member that they did not feel safe, the staff member told her to quiet down. When this writer clarified with youth regarding the staff telling them to quiet down, the youth shared that it is difficult for staff to calm her down in the moment when staff are managing crisis with another youth. This writer validated youth’s concerns. This youth also shared that staff can help her feel safe by giving her the attention she needs when the staff member is not attending to a youth in crisis at that moment. This writer followed up with Executive Director, Cassie Trahan, regarding privacy restrictions for phone calls and the concern one of the youths brought up about feeling unsafe. The Executive Director shared that the staff always follow up with the youth and they also address any safety concerns in daily groups as well. The youth have access to outside crisis support 24 hours a day and a mental health support person on site. Regarding phone calls, The Executive Director shared that the two-youth interviewed have parent monitored phone calls advised by their DHS Caseworkers for safety concerns. Staff are in the general area when you make phone calls, so the youth aren’t calling people not on their approved call list for safety concerns. The Youth can have privacy Zoom calls with legal guardians, legal representatives, and CASA Workers.

Observations
At the Unannounced Inspection, Program Staff assisted with the walk-through of the programs with Jorge Pelinski and Aubrey Kelly, ODHS Licensing Coordinators. Staff were observed at the program during the inspection walk-through. The youth that were at the program were in their rooms. The rest of the youth went out on an outing with staff. The staff were observed to be at ease and comfortable in the environment. All areas of the program (inside and outside) where youth had access were observed. The program, in general, appeared to be clean and in good repair. Two youth rooms were observed to be cluttered and messy. The Executive Director talked to one of youth while licensing coordinators were on site about the need to clean up their room. Medication was observed to be kept in locked cabinets inaccessible to youth.
