Licensed Child Caring Agency Site Visit Report
Residential Care

Licensee: Janus Youth Programs
Executive Director: Dennis Morrow
Board Chairperson: Sue Campo
Programs: Buckman, Cordero, Imani, and Rivera

Date of site visit: 4/25/22 to 4/27/22
Licensing Coordinator: Ed Wyller;
Assisted by Todd Cooley, Tom Heidt, Holly Ivey, and Aubrey Kelly

Other Regulatory or Accrediting Agencies: DHS Treatment Services and Oregon Youth Authority (OYA). CARF Accreditation for Imani

Program Compliance: The program was found to be compliant or will be compliant with OAR 413-215-0001 to 413-215-0131, Licensing Umbrella Rules, and OAR 413-215-0501 to 413-215-0586, Licensing Residential Care Agencies Rules. Personnel records were reviewed and compliance with required background checks was documented for employees in all programs.

Program Description(s):

Buckman: Program reports, "Buckman and the Oregon Youth Authority first pioneered the design and delivery of a highly specialized services specifically for 17–24-year-old adjudicated males in 1992. Now ranked one of the most effective treatment programs of its type in Oregon and among the highest rated in the country for use of Evidence-Based Practice. Buckman's ongoing partnerships with the Oregon Youth Authority have seen the development of a constellation of additional services that are unmatched in the state. This includes providing the latest technological and employment training/job search coaching and support for Buckman clients and other Oregon Youth Authority youth living in the community who need independent living and employment support."

Cordero: Program reports, "Cordero House has contracted with the Oregon Youth Authority to provide 24 hour-seven days a week residential services for up to 14 sexually harmful youth since 1996. The mission of Cordero is to provide effective and innovative services that rehabilitate youth offenders and reduce the incidence of sexual abuse. Cordero staff attend the Annual Oregon Adolescent Sex Offending Treatment Network (OASOTN) Conference and training and regularly review new research studies to keep current with best practices and evidence-based treatment for sexual offenders. Cordero believes, and evidence supports, that family involvement in client treatment improves the client's rate of positive treatment outcomes. Parent/family resources are strongly encouraged to participate in family counseling, skill building, treatment reviews, structured visits and community and home passes. The program uses the model of Positive Peer Culture as a Behavior Management Intervention to establish a common set of social behaviors modeled by staff and practiced by peers. Positive Peer Culture interventions help youth to learn non-delinquent ways of handing themselves and meeting their needs. Positive Peer Culture has been taught at Cordero for 40 years.

Imani: Program reports, “Imani House program for adolescent males with sexually aggressive behaviors is located in North Portland. The program is modeled after Cordero, but with special considerations for younger and generally non-adjudicated population, and offers clients who have multiple debilitating psychosocial, emotional, and behavioral disorders a safe place to receive treatment for sexually aggressive behaviors and boundary issues. The mission of Imani House is to provide effective and innovative services that rehabilitate clients with sexually aggressive behaviors and end the incidence of sexual abuse and victimization of others. Imani is designed to provide treatment, education, supervision, and healing to teenage boys with a demonstrated history of sexually reactive/aggressive behaviors. Imani is committed to providing ethically sound and evidence-based services to clients while always protecting community safety. The goal is to assist each client to progress through the normal stages of adolescent development and to become safe, compassionate, healthy, and contributing members of the community. The residents attend school through our highly effective educational program set up in collaboration with Portland Public Schools. The clients attend the Clinton School located on the Benson high school campus in NE Portland. Supervised transportation is provided for all clients. An Imani lead skills trainer provides support and supervision for students while they are at school. Imani provides onsite therapeutic services including a comprehensive 30-day assessment, individual, group, and family skill-building and counseling services at least 12 hours per week. Imani collaborates with two Psychiatric Nurse Practitioners who assess and manage our client psychotropic medications.”

Rivera: Program reports, “The Rivera House is transitional living program serving LGBTQIA+ (Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, Queer/Questioning, Intersex, and Asexual) youth being released from Oregon Youth Authority or transitioning out of the custody of Oregon Department of Human Services. The Rivera House is a transitional living program with a 6-month after-care component. It is a share-housing model located in North Portland. Each young person who successfully graduates a BRS Level 4 Residential Program or who are referred to the BRS Level 3 Program is eligible to apply to the practical applications of independent living under limited staff supervision as they gain confidence in their newly acquired semi-independent living status. The Rivera House integrates clients into the community and utilizes community resource for its support.

The clients at the Rivera House are expected to maintain a full day living routine, full-time employment or school, and attend any medical and/or treatment obligations while they reside in the residence. In addition, the clients put into practice the treatment and the independent living and social skills that they have learned from their previous residential placements. Client success is based on their integration into the community. Preparation, knowledge, skills, integration and knowing the expectations form the community at-large will help these young people become productive contributors to society.”

Interviews, Observations:

Buckman: I interviewed two youth from Buckman House independently. I met with each youth outside on the covered porch to ensure privacy from program employees and other youth. Youth reported that they feel safe at Buckman House. On a scale from 0-10 (0=worst program, 10=best program) youth reported Buckman to be a 7-8. Food was reported to be "good" and that the youth make their own food. Youth reported skills learned and practice are money management, social skills, and how to ask for their own needs. One youth reported, "likes the independence and being trusted to be responsible." For fun one youth reported going and working out in the basement gym for 30 minutes and the other youth enjoyed going for walks in the neighborhood. One youth discussed recent changes in leadership and is wondering if the program will become restrictive.

Cordero: I interviewed one youth from each Cordero Team independently (two total youth). I met with each youth outside on the covered porch to ensure privacy form program employees and other youth. Youth reported feeling safe at Buckman House. On a scale from 0-10 (0=worst program, 10=best program) youth reported Cordero to be a 9 and 9.5 on that scale. Youth made the following statements, "Staff treat you with respect", "Staff treat the youth the same, no favorites". One youth reported food to be good. The other youth reported food has variety but the USDA breakfast and lunches he would like more food. Both youths reported learning the following at Cordero House: How to communicate with community members, noticing thinking errors, interpersonal effectiveness, moral reasoning, anger management, and living skills. For fun youth reported going on community outings to the park, zoo, and movies. One youth reported his team recently went to an escape room for an outing that the team had picked. Reported activities on-site included: read, video games, puzzles, basketball, and volleyball.

Imani: I interviewed two youth independently. I met with each youth in the front living room to ensure privacy. On a scale from 0-10 (0=worst program and 10=best program) youth reported Imani to be a 7 and 8.5 on that scale. Youth reported they feel safe. One youth reported when there was a youth that used to throw objects, they did not feel safe when that youth would throw objects. When pressed on those situations, the youth indicated that the other youth were moved away and staff intervened. The disruptive youth was discharged for those behaviors. Food was reported to be "okay" and "alright". Recent outings include hiking with Sierra Club on Forest Park Loop last weekend. Other outings include Oaks Park, Timbers Games, Playing Basketball at Park, and going to boxing gym every other Sunday. Youth also reported enjoying movies in the adjacent building projected on a big screen and playing magic. Youth reported learning about boundaries and how to respect and take accountability regarding boundaries. Other skills reported that youth have learned while at Imani include communication skills, empathy work, and interventions regarding handling anger.

Rivera: I interviewed one youth in the back living room of the Rivera program to ensure privacy from both employees and other youth. Youth reported that they feel safe at Rivera house. They reported if they did not feel safe there are staff, they feel comfortable with and could talk to. They reported learning independent living skills at Rivera House. Staff and Food were reported to be "good". For fun youth reported enjoying making bracelets and listening to music.

Program Strengths:

Buckman: Program reports, "Buckman and the Oregon Youth Authority first pioneered the design and delivery of a highly specialized services specifically for 17–24-year-old adjudicated males in 1992. Now ranked one of the most effective treatment programs of its type in Oregon and among the highest rated in the country for use of Evidence-Based Practice. Buckman's ongoing partnerships with the Oregon Youth Authority have seen the development of a constellation of additional services that are unmatched in the state. This includes providing the latest technological and employment training/job search coaching and support for Buckman clients and other Oregon Youth Authority youth living in the community who need independent living and employment support."

Cordero: Program reports, “Cordero provides a consistent structure and level system, a Positive Peer Culture model and a strong clinical team.”

Imani: Program reports, “Imani is a highly structured and consistent, evidence-supported treatment model, staff-supported school program.”

Rivera: Program reports, “Rivera is unique in providing services to the LGBTQIA+ youth population entering society for the first time after OYA or DHS custody. Rivera is a safe space for youth to explore identifies, and their identities and experiences are valued here. LGBTQIA+ youth can connect to resources through Rivera. Rivera is a safe space to start exploring independence and community ties. Rivera employs caring and well-educated staff that specialize in working with LGBTQIA+ youth.”

Program Challenges:

Buckman: Program reports, “The Covid Pandemic and subsequent restrictions have created considerable challenges for the program impacting our program practice by severely limiting youth’s opportunities for engagement in community based social and independent living skill development, as well as vocational and educational experiences.

Staff have also been profoundly impacted by the enormous challenge this presented for our essential care staff who faced a more challenging work environment, increased risk of infection and an increased workload both in terms of programmatic challenges as well as staffing shortages and taking on additional shifts to cover for staff who were ill or unable to work in a congregate care environment due to their own health circumstances. This, in turn, took an extraordinary toll on the program’s leadership team as they tried to adapt and respond to the turbulent, unpredictable environment while striving to continue to meet the needs of our employees and the youth in our care, compounded by environmental (inclement weather and fire) conditions and social issues including street riots, increased violence and risk of harm and increased collective anxiety. We are currently facing a critical turnover in key leadership staff in an environment in which recruitment of new employee’s is particularly challenging.

Finally, the pandemic has impacted the environment of care as routine upkeep, landscaping, general maintenance and necessary repairs had to be delayed due to Covid restrictions. We are currently working to address these issues, however the overall challenges of the pandemic, as described above have resulted in a reduction of our Daily Average Population, resulting in decreased revenue at the same time we are experiencing across the board increased costs and subsequent fiscal challenges.”

Cordero: Program reports, “Staffing shortages and requirements and limitations of providing services in a Covid-19 environment.”

Imani: Program reports, “Ongoing staffing shortages and struggles maintaining ADP.”

Rivera: Program reports, “Low client numbers, staff turnover, and client compliance with program expectations.”

Changes that have occurred in the last 2 years:

Buckman: Program reports, “The most significant change however is occurring now as we are facing the imminent departure of three members of the leadership team. The Program Director, who has been with Buckman for 20+ years and the Program Manager will be leaving the agency while our Clinician/Therapist is going out on Family Leave. They will all be departing within the span of one week’s time. We have hired a new Program Director and have contracted with an excellent clinician to provide on-going services to our youth and clinical guidance to the team to assist during this time of transition.

Cordero: Program reports, “Turnover in management team.”

Imani: Program reports, “Staffing reduction and client group restructuring in response to reduced ADP budget impacts. New building completion, resulting in increased and improved treatment environment.”

Rivera: Program reports, “Within the last two years, we have seen significant changes to staffing a Rivera House; our Program Supervisor and Program Director stepped down from their positions within six months of one another; the Program Director position has been filled and we are currently seeking a Program Supervisor. We have a new Case Manager, Ashley Rincon, and a new Senior Youth Care Specialist, Jesse Crossno. We also recently hired a new Relief Coordinator, Youth Care Specialist, and Overnight Youth Care Specialist. In 2021 we received new funding from Oregon Department of Human Services to help pay for staff trainings and to fund the new Relief Coordinator position, which will extend through June of 2022. We recently made changes to the way we calculate BRS, moving from a monthly calculation to weekly.”
