Interview summary
Cordero - Client #1: They are 18 years old and have been at the program for just over 1 year. They have been at several other programs in Oregon. This program is their favorite because of the very structured schedule, staff are willing to be supportive and staff holds everyone accountable. They feel safe here. They get along with other the clients and staff. Breakfast and lunch are ok but boring. Staff makes dinner, and clients at a certain level help with dinner. They get enough food and snacks, and water is always available. Client #2: They are 15 years old and have been at the program 5 months. This is their first program. The program has lots of benefits; it teaches them to do better. They said, “This is the best program in the state of Oregon.” They love the staff. One staff was fired, but they felt like management of the program handled the situation very well and assured the clients they were safe. The food is really good, and they get enough to eat. They have ups and downs with the other clients, and they sometimes argue over small things. They get along with the staff. They have phone calls every night with their family. They would like to change the positive peer culture model. Atlas – Client #1 – They are 19 years old and have been at the program for 10 months. They were previously at Cordero. They were previously taking classes at PCC, but they are currently taking a break to find a job. They want to take online classes while working. They get along with the other clients. They get along with staff, but, at times, they become frustrated with staff, as staff makes decisions they don’t always understand. The clients are responsible for breakfast and lunch. Staff and clients together make dinner. They wish the food was healthier, wishes there were more vegetables. They feel safe here and feel supported by staff, though sometimes staff can be overbearing. The behaviors of other clients can make them uncomfortable.

Observations
Cordero – The program was very clean and in good repair. The house was nicely decorated for the Easter holiday. Buckman – The inside of the house has been painted and looks fresh and clean. The client bedrooms were clean and in good repair. Atlas – Clients are not allowed in the basement without staff supervision due to the work being done following a flood. The program is clean and has a homelike feel to it.
