Interview Summary
I interviewed two youth separately in the front foyer where youth make private phone calls. Youth reported feeling safe in the program. One youth reported if you file a grievance, Steve Quick will follow up immediately and “handle it”. One youth reported that staff treat us like humans and support us. On a scale from 0-10 (0=worst program, 10=best program) youth reported Crimson Rose to be a 7, and 7.5. One of the youths reported feeling that the program will not give up on you as they have been to Crimson Rose three times. Youth reported learning from the groups and “actually like groups”. When asked what they have learned the following was reported as learnt at Crimson Rose: using coping skills, assertive communication, being more open minded, and not to engage in drama. One youth reported the program being short is great as you learn skills and get to practice the skills in real life situations. Food was reported to be “Amazing”, and another youth reported “alright”. The youth reported amazing only other program experience was a detention setting. Youth reported getting plenty to eat and having a variety of food. Youth reported the following community outings: library, parks, lakes, going to play video games in town, ice skating, and ice cream after outings. Reported on-site activities playing cards, read, crochet, color, watching tv, and conversations with staff. Regarding school one youth reported working towards their GED and how the program supports them on taking pretests and tests for the GED. Teachers were reported to be “super hands on and respectful.” Staff make youth feel comfortable at Crimson Rose. The other youth reported, “Staff are good”. One youth reported Lisa Sparks as a great staff. When youth were asked about if they had a magic wand and could change the program, they reported the following. “Maybe groups about independent living skills” and other youth reported, “Change that program is not in a detention or Klamath Falls”. The youth was referring to the fact that the program is located in the same building as the county’s juvenile detention facility.

Observations
During the tour I noted new gas stove and range. Program has added an air fryer. The classroom has a new indoor garden for student learning. When speaking with staff I learned of a new practice of management spending 1-2 hours on site at the program in the evenings. This time is used to check in with youth individually to reflect on how the youth is doing on their goals. Staff and youth reported this new practice to be positively impacting the program’s milieu.

Corrective Actions and Timeframes:
Good work no new findings and all previous findings have been addressed.
