| Interview Summary |
| --- |
| Two youth from Crimson Rose were interviewed individually in the visitation room without staff present. On a scale from 0-10 (0=worst program, 10=best program) youth reported Crimson Rose to be an 8 and 8.5 on that scale. Both youths reported feeling safe in the program and the food to be good. One youth reported program to be “really helpful, and staff do care”. Youths reported learning self-esteem, coping with anger, coping skills, and reported attending drug and alcohol groups. Youth reported having treatment binders and attending groups and individual counseling. Youth reported these to be helpful. Youth appreciated the school and reported that they are involved in credit recovery and feel successful in the school. Both youths reported Lisa Sparks as doing a lot for them and being caring. Staff members and case managers were described as people that could be trusted. Youth reported in the past two weeks they went to a local Shakespearian play, movies, and walks. Youth reported having access to family and friends though daily phone calls, zoom calls and visits on weekends. When asked if given a magic wand to change something at Crimson Rose one youth reported eating on regular plates instead of food trays would be preferable. The other youth reported if you have a book in a series, please have the complete series available. |

| Observations |
| --- |
| I observed Crimson Rose to be clean, organized, and all youth bedrooms to clean. Crimson Rose continues to make the living space feel welcoming. I observed the youth in school and interacting positively with the teacher and the staff in the classroom. I observed a youth going with a staff member to a doctor’s appointment. Staff members talked about youth successfully graduating from the program and the school as well.At the conclusion of visit I met with part of the treatment team and Juvenile Department Director Dan Golden. I reviewed the plans for the new program and Crimson Rose’s plans for building a new program building with a dedicated indoor garden, vocational/ educational building, and a transitional program. Plans include the use of geothermal and solar energy. |
